DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless —

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

2. Claims 1-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Mayle et al., US Pat. No. 6,542,936 B1.

3. As to claim 1, Mayle teaches a method for communicating with electronic postcards comprising:

- a) providing a server for processing electronic postcards (Fig. 2);
- b) selecting at least one input site remote from the server (Fig. 2);
- c) establishing a verified communication link between the at least one input site and the server (col. 5, lines 11-18; col. 7, line 60 – col. 8, line 6);
- d) providing a sender input device at the at least one input site for receiving input information from a sender, the request including an addressee e-mail address; e) inputting sender information to the input device (col. 7, lines 49-58; col. 9, lines 14-23; Figs. 14, 17, 3B);
- f) generating an electronic postcard from the sender information (Fig. 3B); and
- g) transmitting the electronic postcard from the at least one input site to the server and from the server to the addressee e-mail address (col. 13, lines 1-21).

4. As to claim 2, Mayle teaches the method including performing said step a) by operating a web site from the server and wherein said step e) includes connecting the at least one input site to the server over the Internet (col. 4, line 61 – col. 5, line 8; col. 5, lines 11-18).

5. As to claim 3, Mayle teaches the method including performing said step b) by selecting a gift shop as said at least one input site (col. 8, lines 1-20).

6. As to claim 4, Mayle teaches the method including providing a form for recording the sender information and performing said step e) utilizing the sender information recorded on the form by the sender (col. 7, lines 49-58; col. 9, lines 14-23).

7. As to claim 5, Mayle teaches the method including performing said step e) by the sender inputting the sender information into the input device (col. 7, lines 49-58; col. 9, lines 14-23).

8. As to claim 6, Mayle teaches the method including performing said step e) by the sender selecting a local scene from a plurality of local scenes stored in one of the at least one input device and the server (col. 8, lines 60-67; Figs. 4 and 9).

9. As to claim 7, Mayle teaches the method including affixing a verified postmark to the electronic postcard, the verified postmark being uniquely associated with the at least one input site (col. 9, lines 34-47).

10. As to claim 8, Mayle teaches a method for communicating with electronic postcards comprising:

- a) selecting at least one input site and storing a plurality of images related to the at least one input site (Fig. 2; col. 8, lines 60-67);
- b) providing a user input device at the at least one input site for receiving a postcard request from a sender, the request including a selection of at least one of the stored images, a message and an addressee address (col. 7, lines 49-58; col. 8, lines 60-67; col. 9, lines 14-23; Figs. 14, 17, 3B);
- c) generating an electronic postcard in response to the user request, the electronic postcard including the at least one stored image and the message (Fig. 3B);
- d) affixing a verified postmark to the electronic postcard, the verified postmark being uniquely associated with the at least one input site (col. 9, lines 34-47); and
- e) transmitting the electronic postcard to the addressee address (col. 13, lines 1-21).

11. As to claim 9, Mayle teaches the method including performing said step b) by selecting a gift shop as the at least one input site (col. 8, lines 1-20).

12. As to claim 10, Mayle teaches the method including performing said step b) by selecting a location that sells preprinted postcards as the at least one input site (col. 8, lines 1-20).

13. As to claim 11, Mayle teaches the method wherein the user input device includes one of a printed form and a computerized terminal (col. 8, lines 1-20).

14. As to claim 12, Mayle teaches the method including performing said step e) by transmitting the electronic postcard on the Interact (col. 13, lines 1-21; col. 7, lines 49-58).

15. As to claim 13, Mayle teaches the method including providing the sender with a printed copy of the electronic postcard (print function; Fig. 17).

16. As to claim 14, Mayle teaches an apparatus for generating printed postcards comprising:

a) a server means located at a predetermined location (Fig. 2);

b) at least one input devices located at an input site remote from said server means for receiving from a sender a postcard request including an addressee address and at least one of a sender message and a scene related to a location of said input site (col. 7, lines 49-58; col. 9, lines 14-23; Figs. 14, 17, 3B); and

c) a verified communications connection for selectively connecting said input device to said server means, said input device and said server means being responsive to said postcard request for transmitting an electronic postcard including a verified postmark from said server means to the addressee, said electronic postcard including said at least one of a sender message and a scene related to a location of said input site (col. 5, lines 11-18; col. 7, line 60 – col. 8, line 6; col. 9, lines 34-47).

17. As to claim 15, Mayle teaches the apparatus wherein said input device includes means for inputting said message as a handwritten message of the sender (col. 18, lines 10-29).

18. As to claim 16, Mayle teaches the apparatus wherein said input site is a gift shop (col. 8, lines 1-20).

19. As to claim 17, Mayle teaches the apparatus including a plurality of images of scenes stored on at least one of said server means and said input device and wherein said input device permits selection of said scene related to a location of said input site from said plurality of images (col. 8, lines 60-67).
